

www.oxfordowl.co.uk

This website has a huge number of resources to support reading, maths and phonics.

You can register for free as a parent.

To access on line reading books:

go to the book tab and click on the eBook library link.

If you then click on the orange level tab and choose book bands you will be able to access books working at the same level as the book band colour your child has being bringing home from school.

There are also activities linked to the book they have been reading.

There are also many more resources under the kids activity tab.

Scroll down to storyteller videos and you can access authors reading their stories.

Another great website for book activities is www.worldbookday.com

Click on the resources tab and then choose primary resources. Here you will find lots of activities linked to different books you may already have at home or perhaps you will find a new favourite.

Harper Collins have also provided free home access to ebooks.
